

TriMet's Lobbying Efforts

As of December 31, 2013

In our efforts to promote transit and expand service in the tri-county metropolitan region, TriMet utilizes the professional lobbying efforts of organizations who help promote transit and the many benefits it provides our community. Sunshine Review, a non-profit organization advocating for government transparency, suggests that if a unit of government belongs to any government sector lobbying associations that it helps to fund by paying association or membership dues, that information should be disclosed on the government unit's website.

To that end, TriMet discloses the following lobbying efforts:

Organizations

In the calendar year 2013, TriMet paid membership dues or fees to the following organizations that contain (at least in part) a transportation industry lobbying function:

- American Public Transportation Association (APTA)
- Oregon Transit Association (OTA)
- Oregon Rail Users League
